

The map depicts the geographical distribution of shooting incidents perpetrated by females In Boston.

- Data Points: Each point represents a location where a shooting incident occurred and was perpetrated by a female.
- Analysis: By analyzing the density and distribution of these points, we could potentially identify areas with higher occurrences of such shootings.

Geographical distribution of shooting incidents perpetrated by females

Geographical distribution of shooting incidents perpetrated by females

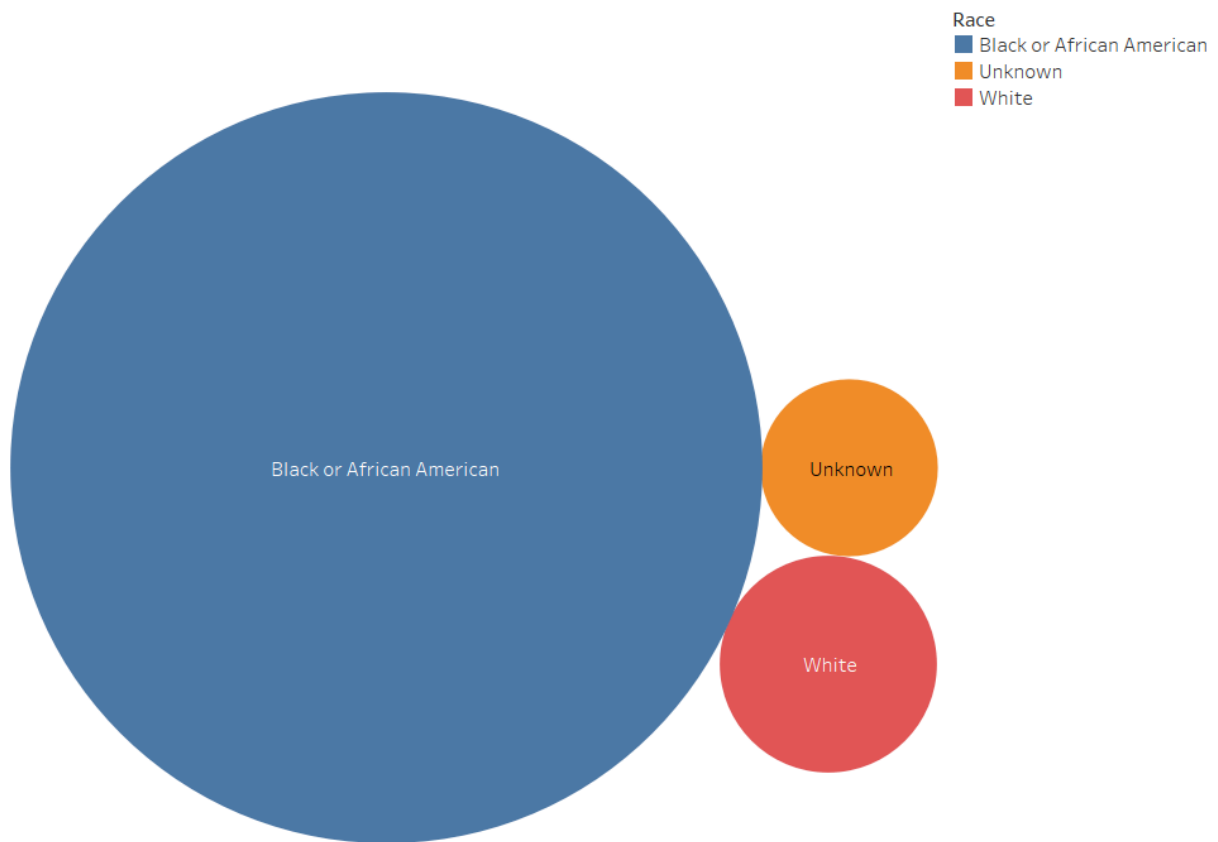

"The count of shootings committed by females, categorized by the race of the shooter."

- Categories: The chart breaks down the count of shootings into different racial categories: Black or African American, Unknown, and White.
- Data: The chart shows the number of shootings in each racial category.

- Coloring: The chart uses color to differentiate the races.

The count of shootings committed by females, categorized by the race of the shooter

Race. Color shows details about Race. Size shows sum of Multiple Victims. The marks are labeled by Race.